2025 is the year of the most sensual earth tones. The colors of clay, pebbles, and sand paint the warmest of memories. This year's trends are defined by April Love 1061, North Beach Blue 0485, Midnight Magic 0508, Pale Loden 0440, Orange Ballad 1019, Turkscap 1006 and Ageless 0181.

The palette for 2025 is designed to create a cozy atmosphere with shades of copper and tones of grey working together but also on their own.

The color rendering in this brochure may deviate slightly from the actual, due to printing limitations. For an accurate rendering of colors, please consult our Vitex Global Collection fan deck.

GLOBAL COLLECTION

Inspired by modern international decorative trends, the Vitex Global Collection fan deck, with more than 1,300 shades, has been created in strategic collaboration with the international organisation Color Guild.

GLOBAL EXTERIOR

The 160 specially designed HD (High Durability) shades from inorganic pigments in the Vitex Global Exterior fan offer:

- Enhanced resistance to solar radiation and extreme weather conditions
- Facades that remain unchanged over time
- Unique precision in reproducing every color with the Vitex Coloring System

Colorful Collaborations

GLOBAL COLOR AUTHORITY

Vitex, in exclusive partnership with the Color Guild, presents TRENDS, the ultimate guide to decorating with color. On the following pages you can explore a contemporary colorful world created for you in cooperation with expert colorists from the Color Guild and Vitex, and there are 1,320 different color options in the Vitex Global Collection color palette fan deck to choose from.

The Color Guild is the largest international organisation of independent paint manufacturers, with 60 member companies worldwide, which predicts and influences color trends. The organization's international expertise has established it as the global paint & color authority. Its strategic partners are some of the largest organizations in the international field of architecture.

Vitex Fan Decks

Discover over 4,500 colors and color using the Vitex Color System, the only system in Greece that uses 24 colors.

- For outstanding accuracy and repeatability
- With shades specially designed for resistance to time and UV solar radiation (HD – High Durability)

THE PSYCHOLOGY OF COLORS

EXPERTS SUGGEST STARTING WITH THE MOOD AND EMOTION YOU WANT TO ELICIT IN A SPACE BEFORE SETTLING ON THE COLOR.

Simplicity

If simplicity and clear emotions are the issue, then grey and off-white tones are what you're looking for.

Power and control

Black is the color that a space needs when you want to feel in control and powerful, while it also reveals honesty and authority.

A welcoming embrace

Orange is warm and friendly and can impart a sense of warmth and intimacy. It is suitable for relaxation rooms, where comfort and a positive mood are important.

Prosperity

Green is associated with growth and creativity. It can enhance a sense of well-being and promote inspiration and creativity. The same effect can be achieved with off-white tones.

Mindfulness

If you need a corner of the house that reflects spirituality, then a soft shade of purple can create that feeling. Purple is also thought to be associated with luxury and a sense of mystery.

Colors act on the thymus gland, affect mood and behaviour, and can emphasize the use of each room. For interior design specialists, applying color psychology is important to create a pleasant yet functional environment.

Positive energy

Yellow is a bright and pleasant color, which can boost your mood. It is suitable for children's rooms, where creativity and encouraging play are important. Experts emphasize that it helps in places where you choose to work or in utility rooms.

Comfort and intimacy

All browns cultivate a sense of hospitality and friendliness. So choose them for the living room or on one of the walls of the dining room. In lighter shades they are considered an ideal option for the bedroom.

A sense of freedom

The more emotional shades of blue – not the very dark ones – give that sense of liberation that you are often looking for. Experts recommend them, especially for rooms that do not have plenty of natural light, to replace the view of the sky.

In an off-white style

Forget the all-white walls in the living room. White acquires shadows, gradations, stages, dimensions and depth when different tonalities are combined. Never before has something so close to white seemed so adventurous.

AESTHETICS & DURABILITY

ROUGH TEXTURES ON THE WALLS OFFER MORE PROTECTION AND CAN PLAY A KEY ROLE IN CAPTURING THE STYLE YOU WANT TO ACHIEVE.

A powerful choice
The use of plaster for facades with a granular surface, especially outdoors, ensures greater resistance for the surfaces where it is applied, providing moisture resistance and protection from dirt and microorganisms.

Apply Granikot Acrylic plaster to interior and exterior surfaces, in unlimited combinations of shades, for high resistance to changes in the weather and mechanical stresses (p. 65).

Magical ability
Embossed and rougher walls can be an ideal surface for a climbing plant to grow and climb. An awesome choice-discovery for terraces and balconies.

Choose between the different Flat and Grafiato finish granulometries of Granikot Silicone plasters and determine the final pattern, especially on facades with high humidity conditions (p. 65).

Industrial style and contrasts

Bring together lots of plants and industrial grey, non-smooth walls for a modern industrial design. This particular style loves natural light, fits into building entrances, but also indoors.

Colored texture

Exterior walls do not have to be monochrome. Dare to color granular exterior walls, combining aesthetics and protection. Even try creating geometries or experimenting with many different textures. Generally, dare!

For the best results and long-term protection, choose the VitexTherm certified external thermal insulation system (p. 65).
